A New and Rapidly Growing Book Field

Child Study and Nurture, a Subject Occupying More and More Parents' Attention, Should Be Considered by the Bookseller

Miriam Ott Munson

A NEW and rapidly growing book field, which lies ready for cultivation by the bookseller, is that of the literature which is springing up around the subject of Child Study and Nurture.

From the foreign-born mother who said, "I study children to do what is right for them," to the keen business man who, upon taking his small son to the nursery school which Vassar College instituted last summer, said he wished he had known about nursery schools four years before, mothers and fathers everywhere are evincing a growing interest in all that pertains to the rearing of children.

Time was, when children were brought up by guess work or by just worrying thru; but today parents, teachers and others are reaching out after the vast store of information which has been gathered together during the past twenty years by scientists, teachers and child-research workers in America and Europe.

Since the late G. Stanley Hall, twenty-five years ago first put forth his scientific findings con erning the workings of children's bodies, minds and emotions, a whole literature has grown up around the subject of child rearing. And, in consequence, a "new generation is questioning the method of the old and is seeking, more and more, for the expert guidance which has been gathered together by psychologists, biologists, physicians, teachers and social workers and is now being put forth in books which the average parent can comprehend."

These books cover every phase of a child's mental, physical and emotional life from birth to maturity, and fall under these eight main headings: the physical care of mother and child; the nursery school (that newest experiment in education which is going forward in various cities in ten states); the philosophy of education; eugenics and heredity; appreciation of child life; play and recreation; sex and its problems; adolescence and the many books of fiction and autobiography that bear upon this important subject.

Of the many books on these subjects which the Child Study Association of America has recommended, the following are listed as being most likely to appeal to the average parent:

HOLT, EMMET L. "THE HAPPY BABY."
Dodd, Mead, $1.
KERLEY, CHARLES G. "SHORT TALKS WITH YOUNG MOTHERS."
Putnam, $1.50.
WOOLLEY, HELEN T. "THE NURSERY SCHOOL."

WHITE, WM. A. "MENTAL HYGIENE OF CHILDHOOD."
Little, Brown, $1.75.
MILLER, HUGH C. "THE NEW PSYCHOLOGY AND THE TEACHER."
A. & C. Boni.
RICHARDSON, FRANK HOWARD, M.D.
"PARENTHOOD AND THE NEWER PSYCHOLOGY."
Putnam, $1.75.
GESELL, ARNOLD, M.D. "THE PRE-SCHOOL CHILD."
Houghton, $1.90.
GRUENBERG, BENJ. C., EDITOR. "OUTLINES OF CHILD STUDY."
Macmillan, $1.80.
DEWEY, JOHN. "HOW WE THINK."
Heath, $1.60.
ADLER, FELIX. "MORAL INSTRUCTION OF CHILDREN."
Appleton, $2.
GUYER, M. F. "BEING WELL BORN."
Bobbs-Merrill, $2.
EWALD, CARL. "MY LITTLE BOY."
Scribner's, $1.25.
BRUCE, H. ADDINGTON. "PSYCHOLOGY AND PARENTHOOD."
Dodd, Mead, $2.
WOOD, WALTER. "CHILDREN'S PLAY AND ITS PLACE IN EDUCATION."
Duffield, o. p.
MOLL, DR. ALBERT. "SEXUAL LIFE OF THE CHILD."
Macmillan, $2.
SWIFT, EDGAR JAMES. "YOUTH AND THE RACE."
Scribner's, $2.50.
MUIR, JOHN. "THE STORY OF MY BOYHOOD AND YOUTH."
Houghton, $3.25.
"THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF G. STANLEY HALL."

This increasing interest in the mental, physical and emotional life of children, and the study of the best ways to direct it, is receiving a tremendous stimulus from large and influential national organizations, such as: The National Federation of Women's Clubs, with its membership of something like 3,000,000 women; the Parent Teacher's Association, of which every little hamlet now boasts a chapter; the Child Study Association of America; the Association of American University Women, as well as organizations connected with churches, and the training and corrective departments of the various states, and also the American Library Association and the National Educational Association.

These organizations are not only working out programs, but are also suggesting books, like the above, which summarize, interpret and apply, in a practical way, all the specialized knowledge that bears upon the intellectual, social or moral nature, or the education and training of the young.

The Federation of Women's Clubs and the Association of American University Women are suggesting to their members, who are mothers, that they form Round Table study groups. This has been done in practically all the larger cities by University alumnae who generally have as leader an individual who has had specific and scientific training in child rearing. Topics such as those previously mentioned are studied and discussed. Several books are recommended as text and reference books, and others for general reading.

But it has been difficult for individuals and study groups to obtain the recommended books at their home town bookshop. It has been suggested that booksellers get in touch with the leaders of the various organizations in their communities such as the Parent Teacher's Association, the church Mother's Clubs and others that are stressing child study, and determine from them what books they are recommending to their members, and then have them on hand, just as is done in the case of the Missionary Study books, when these groups are starting their study campaigns and the general interest in the books is running high.

It takes time to send off to publishers for books, more time, often, than busy mothers possess; but by cooperating with the Study Groups and bringing the wanted books directly to the mothers, the forward-looking bookseller has an opportunity not only to meet a growing need, but to further develop this new field, which holds far reaching possibilities for himself.

Certificate Awarded

Mother or Father Who Reads Twenty Books on Parenthood

Department of Education Maps Out Course of Instruction for Bringing Up Children

THE Bureau of Education, Department of the Interior, has just issued a revision of Reading Course No. 21, "Twenty Good Books for Parents." It is intended for individual parents or for parents who wish to form a reading circle for consideration of the problems of childhood and youth.

A certificate signed by the Commissioner of Education will be issued to anyone completing the course according to requirements.

In an introductory statement to the reading course, the Bureau of Education, says:

"Modern life, with the breaking down of traditions regarding the training of children and the increasing difficulties arising from the present-day development of initiative in youth, places more and more responsibility upon parents and all guardians of childhood.

"That some parents are conscious of their responsibility is evidenced by the attempts to get reading matter on the various phases of child life and by the organization of groups of parents for the study of particular phases of child training and care.

"The output of books dealing with this subject is evidence that writers are conscious of the need.

"In the selection of a limited number of books for use as a home reading course it has been necessary to omit many books of value. The attempt has been made here to list some of the recent publications on various aspects of child life with reference to early development, health, moral training, adolescence, and the unusual child, and a few books have been included for the purpose of keeping parents in touch with the school problems and the trend of modern education.

"A certificate signed by the Commissioner of Education will be issued to any person completing this course according to requirements. If a circle is formed, individuals should enroll and report as if reading singly."

Course of Reading Outlined

The list of the 20 books suggested is as follows:

For all parents:

"Mothers and Children." By Dorothy Canfield Fisher. Holt & Co. 1914. o. p.

For parents of children of all ages, containing short chapters on the background of children's lives, the scientific spirit of mothers, etc.

"The Fruit of the Family Tree." By Albert Edward Wiggam. Bobbs-M. 1924. $3.

For parents and child-study circles. This book is for readers who are interested in eugenics and race improvement or culture. The author offers this as an incomplete account of the meaning of heredity and of biological forces in human life and society.

"Concerning Parents, a Symposium on Present-Day Parenthood." New Republic Co. 1926. $1.

The responsibilities of parenthood and the necessity of giving children freedom to preserve their individuality are brought out in two dozen papers which were delivered at a national conference by the Child Study Association of America.

"The Child: His Nature and His Needs." A contribution of the Children's Foundation, Valparaiso,Ind. 1924. $1.

For parents and child-study circles. Chapter I. Gives briefly some of the outstanding examples of how scientific knowledge is applied to the enrichment of child life. Chapter II. The ordinary behavior of children is discussed here, and their instincts and impulses are evaluated in order to be able to differentiate normal from unusual behavior and be guided in dealing with children.

"Understanding Our Children." By Frederick Pierce. New York, E. P. Dutton. 1926. $2.

This is a book for parents who expect to have healthy, normal children. It deals with the questions of how to exact obedience without using fear.

"Play in Education." By Joseph Lee. Macmillan, 1926. $1.80.

In this book the author aims to interpret the child to grown people and to show that play is of primary importance, that it is the serious business of child life.

"Wholesome Childhood." By Ernest R. Groves and Gladys Hoagland Groves. Houghton. 1924. $1.75.

For parents of children of all ages describing seven periods of child life between birth and adolescence.

"Is Your Child Ready for School?" By James Frederick Rogers, M.D., Washington, Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office. (U. S. Bureau of Education, Health Education Series No. 19.) 1926. 10 cents.

For parents and parent-teacher associations. A guide to parents in preparing their children for school life.

"When Children Err." By Elizabeth Harrison. Macmillan. 1916. $1.25.

Thru illustrations from real life the author gives help to parents which may be applied to everyday problems of child life in choosing right or wrong standards.

Books Relating to the Small Child

For Parents of Children of Preschool Age:

"(The) Health of the Runabout Child." By William Palmer Lucas. Macmillan. 1923. $1.75.

The author recommends Chapter II to busy parents who want to know something about the normal growth and development of the runabout child.

"Parents and Sex Education." By B. C. Gruenberg. The American Social Hygiene Association. 1923. $1.

For parents of children of preschool age. This is a small textbook containing brief chapters on why education and guidance on sex matters are necessary.

"Talks to Mothers." By Lucy Wheelock. Houghton. 1920. $2.

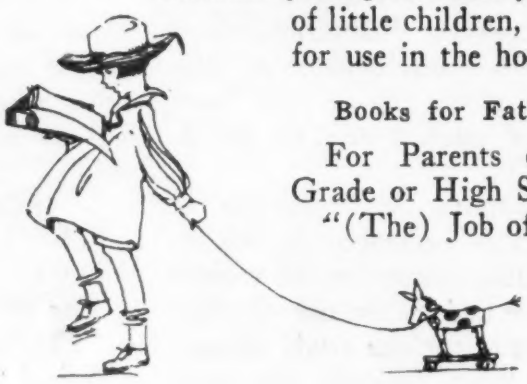
For parents of children of preschool and kindergarten age. Mothers will find help in solving the problems of obedience, truth telling, carelessness, etc.

"Training the Toddler." By Elizabeth Cleveland. Lippincott. 1925. $2.

For parents of children of preschool age. Contains principles underlying the training of little children, in suitable form for use in the home.



Books for Fathers of Boys

For Parents of Children of Grade or High School Age:

"(The) Job of Being a Dad." By Frank H. Cheley. Wilde. 1923. $1.75.

A book for fathers of boys of grade-school and high-school age. This book is written in popular nontechnical style; dealing with boy problems; the father's responsibilities; the home as a background for the boy; the development of the intellectual and social life of a boy, etc.

"School and Home." By Angelo Patri. New York. 1925. $1.50.

Containing chapters on the school that everybody wants, the gifted child, the child who fails, sins against childhood, the spoiled child, the first day of school, parents' associations, etc.

"(A) Schoolmaster in the Great City." Angelo Patri. Macmillan. 1917. $1.60.

For parents of grade school and for parent-teacher associations.

"Sex Education." By Maurice A. Bigelow. Macmillan. 1916. $1.60.

The author feels that all classes of parents should have set before them the great need of the special safeguarding of young people in regard to this subject.

Instruction for Teachers

For Parents and Teachers:

"(The) Home-Maker." By Dorothy Canfield. Harcourt. 1924. $2.

Excellent studies in child psychology are given in the story of three children and the modern problems of home making.

"(The) Problems of Childhood." By Angelo Patri. Appleton. 1926. $1.75; $2.

The author depicts children sympathetically without sentimentality, and in this book he tells how the complexities of child training may be transformed into positive joy of teaching.

"Shackled Youth." By Edward Yeonmans. Atlantic Monthly Press. 1921. $1.60.

Contains short interesting articles on present-day schools, teachers and teaching. The author points out some of the discrepancies and weaknesses of present-day schools and teaching of his own peculiar style.

This attempt to widen parents' reading, with a better understanding of children and their psychology in view, fits in admirably with the adult education movement. It has always been recognized that an intellectual atmosphere is the ideal one for a child, but it is only within the last few years that this recognition has led to a serious effort to make this intellectual atmosphere a practical rather than a theoretical condition, to make it a thing of all homes rather than of a scattered few.

In his recently published book, "The Meaning of Adult Education," Eduard C. Lindeman writes:

"Our lives are successive valuations of experience; in youth we need to extract from life its highest yield of emotional experience (how fatal it is when schools attempt to make little intellectuals out of children who need so much to feel the world!) but if intelligence does not enter to temper, to give meaning to emotions, we shall grow old without growing up. Growth should be a process of integrating emotions with thought, an evolving capacity for feeling more deeply and thinking more clearly. Educative experience spans the whole of life. And experience proceeds from any situation to which adjustment is made with accompanying mental release. Experiences can never happen twice for we move forward into time as changing organisms; education, by the same token, can never stop without abandoning personality to the barren existence of instinctive, habitual responses."

I HOLD every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves, by way of amends, to be a help and ornament thereunto. —Bacon.

Towards Better Conditions

GREATER total business and larger net results is the New Year wish of every industry and of each individual business man, and there is excellent evidence that 1927 is going to provide satisfactory totals for those who can sail their crafts competently on the gradually rising tide of book demand, with the favoring breezes prophesied for the coming twelve months.

It is, however, the function of the leaders of industry to do more than offer prayers for heavy freights and favorable breezes, to make some appropriation of time and money each year to the task of deepening channels, plotting shoals and studying the major problems of navigation. It is this kind of work that must be done by joint undertaking as it gives benefit to all, in deeper loadings, safer landings, more expeditious handling of the craft.

Much has been done in the past decade to benefit the general conditions of book production and distribution. Without that hard work the favorable conditions of today would have brought less than their due benefit. Much remains to be done. It is our best wish for 1927 that the work of perfecting the machinery of American book publishing and bookselling shall go steadily and constructively forward, gaining by the vision of our best leadership and by the energy and cooperative spirit of all.

A dozen years ago our government brought together the best suggestions from a world study, for a better system of banking and the new Federal Reserve System has been of inestimable benefit to us, both in storm and fair weather. When the booktrade has incorporated in its methods the best trade practice and the best ideas from our own experience then the book business will be really prepared for the important years that are ahead and fully ready to measure up to the opportunities that are to develop.

International Flow of Books

AMONG the awaited announcements of the first of the year is the list of books especially recommended for international circulation by the Committee on Intellectual Cooperation of the League of Nations. The plan, as readers will remember, is that such lists shall be made up by competent authorities in different countries, 600 titles altogether, 40 being allowed to each of the largest literature-producing nations. The American Library Association has been the agency to prepare the American lists. The 40 important books of 1924 were listed a year ago at this time and undoubtedly their listing has had strong influence in encouraging the purchase of the books in other countries.

The list covering the publications of 1925 has been made ready by the Association and will shortly be released. The Publishers' Weekly will print it in its Annual Summary Number January 22nd as an appropriate addition to its annual statistics. The Association this year will nominate 37 books, giving out the statement that it prefers to have a slightly incomplete list but one in which every title has an undisputed right to its place.

This effort is only one of many evidences that ways are to be found to encourage better international understanding by the flow of books either in the original tongue or in translation. The work of the P. E. N. Club with its international branches is one effort in this direction. Their lists recommended for translation and republication include fiction as well as other fields, while the League of Nations list contains no fiction or children's books. A new movement to find channels for greater international exchange of the best children's books is under discussion, and some way will undoubtedly be found to foster this idea. An important note in this field was struck by the article of Clara W. Hunt printed in the Publishers' Weekly two years ago which has been often quoted.

The Test of Time

THERE has been no period of literary production so rich and fruitful but that a glance thru the total book publishing of the year will give a feeling of surprise at the temporary nature of the output. Some books lose all value to later generations, some preserve value for reference, some will be kept in print by some quality of permanence.

The decade of the 70's have no especial reputation for literary output but the titles of the early 70's become of new interest to the publishing world as those titles that have continued interest come now year by year into the public domain of ownership as the total of 56 years of copyright control passes.

Some of the volumes that have stood this test of time are:

"Little Men" by Louisa May Alcott
"The Hoosier Schoolmaster" by Edward Eggleston
"Wake Robin" by John Burroughs
"Pike County Ballads" by John Hay
"Society and Solitude" by Ralph Waldo Emerson
"My Study Windows" by James Russell Lowell

Making Usable Catalogs

ONE of the invaluable tools to the American booktrade, the "Trade List Annual," will be even more usable and effective if the suggestions of the Booksellers' Association and the Publishers' Association take concrete form in printing of the general catalogs of all publishers, so that when they are bound up for the 1927 issue the volume can be turned to with the expectation of finding the right catalog page and needed item more quickly.

This movement toward greater usableness and uniformity was begun last year, but many publishers had prepared their catalogs before getting the suggestions and in some cases the value and importance of the suggestions were not fully understood. Those who have not worked in a bookstore do not realize how many times a day the bookseller has to turn to the 'Trade List Annual" to find the description of a book or to verify a price. The searcher's first expectation is to be able to locate quickly the publisher's catalog, but as at present printed, over one-third of the publishers' catalogs fail to carry their publisher's name conspicuously at the top of the page, where it is most natural to find it. This leaves the searcher fumbling around trying to find whether he has reached the proper list or not. Having found the right catalog, he is oftentimes confused by variance in arrangement and frequent lack of an index.

The bookseller and librarian find it difficult to understand why reference catalogs should not be planned to fit the needs of their chief users. A careful study of the most urgent needs has been made by a special committee of the Publishers' Association and sent out, as last year, to its members. These suggestions apply only to the general reference catalog and not to the fall and spring special announcements, in which it is expected publishers will make as much variety as they see fit.

New Terms for Air Mail

THE Postmaster General announces that, effective February 1st, 1927, there will be a flat rate of postage of 10 cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof on air mail regardless of distance or character of air mail route or routes over which the mail is carried.

It is believed that air mail carried on a flat rate basis will not only simplify the present postage rate structure but will have a tendency to increase the volume of air mail and consequently the revenues. A letter under the new rate of 10 cents a half ounce may be mailed in any part of the United States and delivered either over the Government-operated lines or over the contract routes at that rate. Mailers, therefore, will not be confronted with a complicated system of air mail postage rates under the new system.

News and Notes of the American Booksellers' Association

Ellis W. Meyers, Executive Secretary

255 Tenth Ave., New York City

THE necessity for making New Year's resolutions undoubtedly indicates the fact that the maker has a number of faults that ought to be corrected. It is granted that such things should receive attention immediately upon discovery and ought not to be stored up until the beginning of another year. This forces us to take stock and submit a statement. There are, however, few persons who do not recognize the usefulness of taking stock and the advantages of moving out the dead wood and dead ideas to make room for something newer and cleaner. The following resolutions are therefore respectfully submitted to all bookmen and women as reminders of some of the things that may have been forgotten.

RESOLVED that, not only in 1927 but from now on, we adhere to all of the written and un-written trade practices—that, if we are retail booksellers, we do not cut our own throats by cutting prices, that we do not put books on sale before the date of publication; that, if we are publishers, we do not enter into active competition with our own customers, the retailers, that we do not sell books to be used as premiums or in other ways detrimental to their bookstore sale, and that our advertising will be so phrased that the resulting business will be acquired by the retail bookseller.

RESOLVED that we do not support revolutionary ideas but that, as we recognize the necessity of changing our viewpoint and methods from time to time, we accept and adopt new methods that will fit into the present scheme of things so that, thru a process of evolution, we may develop with the times.

RESOLVED that, in accordance with the preceding resolution, we investigate the possibilities of using the shipping center or Clearing House of the American Booksellers Association so that we may, in company with many other bookmen and women, reduce the costs of doing business by paying less of our potential profit to the express companies and post office for carriage charges.

RESOLVED that we contribute to the evolutionary movement by sending to the executive office of the American Booksellers Association any ideas that we may have and any material that we may produce so that this information may be digested and broadcast to the trade for the benefit of all of its members.

RESOLVED that we acknowledge the benefits to be derived from membership in a national trade organization and that we cooperate with our officers in every possible way in making that body's work effective.

RESOLVED that, not being members of the A. B. A. but recognizing the need of such an organization, we immediately write to the Executive Secretary at 255 Tenth Avenue, New York City, requesting that he send us a membership application blank for our signatures and, be it further

RESOLVED that we return such blank (signed on the dotted line) with a check for our membership dues for the year 1927.

RESOLVED that each and every one of us, all bookmen and women, will attend the twenty-seventh annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association which will take place at the Hotel Commodore, New York City, from May 9th to 13th of this year.

A special committee from the Board of Trade of the A. B. A. has held conferences with the representatives of the Literary Guild, Inc., and has sent to them the following answer to their proposal:

New York, Dec. 30, 1926.

The Literary Guild of America,
55 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Gentlemen:

The undersigned, constituting the Committee of the Board of Trade of the American Booksellers' Association, have considered with care your request that they recommend to the booksellers the acceptance of your proposal, which is that the booksellers make use of their contacts with their customers to obtain members for the Literary Guild, with the understanding that the booksellers will for this service receive a payment of $4.50 for each subscribing member out of the $18.00 which the member is to pay for the benefits of his membership. It is our opinion that we cannot recommend such a proposition to the booksellers for the reason that a bookseller in so doing would be using his business facilities to the detriment of his own good will and also, as we believe, to the detriment of the general book buying public.

The country undoubtedly needs a greater number of completely-equipped and well-stocked bookstores. The operation of such a store requires the carrying of large and, to a very considerable extent, slow-moving stocks, since it is obviously necessary to deal not only in so-called "best sellers" but also in a great mass of other books which are frequently of a high order of merit in their respective fields but the popular demand for which is more restricted. The booksellers would have no interest in the sale of books by the Literary Guild beyond the receipt of the fee for obtaining subscribers. The result of your plan would be that the booksellers would be using their good will and their merchandizing organization in the aid of a commercial scheme that would not be serving the general public in a general way or, as we believe, so efficiently as do the booksellers themselves. It is our belief that your plan will injure the booksellers and injure the necessary machinery of proper book distribution. Their business is almost wholly dependent upon the good will of their general customers. In other words, and in short, the competition arising from the demands of their general trade prevents us from recommending to the booksellers a plan whereby a very few titles would be sold to relatively few people in a manner which would involve a commercial profit to your corporation, which is of course a trading organization intended to be operated for profit, but at a loss to the booksellers themselves.

The Literary Guild in Rebuttal

January 5, 1927

Editor, Publishers' Weekly:

We are very glad indeed that you have gone into a thoro discussion of the plans of The Literary Guild in recent issues of Publishers' Weekly, even tho we feel that many of the objections and reservations you have to the plan are not justified by the facts. Particularly in the last issue of the Weekly you make several statements that are unfair to the stand the Guild has taken in relation both to book publishers and booksellers.

It is true that the original plan of the Literary Guild as outlined more than a year ago did not make provision for co-operation with publishers and booksellers. It was modelled on the experience of the German Book Clubs and The Theatre Guild in New York. Books were to be published by the Guild in one edition for subscribers only. No trade edition was contemplated. Authors were to be contracted for direct; booksellers were to be largely ignored. After many months of discussion with publishers and booksellers, however, it seemed more sound and feasible to operate on a basis which would be of direct benefit to the entire trade. Furthermore, the financial support which the Guild is now receiving comes from people who are vitally interested in seeing a wider distribution of good books in this country. They believe that this can best be accomplished by selecting manuscripts from the entire field and permitting the bookseller to greatly increase his business by actively participating in subscription sales.

Our good faith as far as the bookseller is concerned is amply indicated by our present plan which provides every means for placing subscriptions through booksellers—even though the cost of such selling will exceed that of other methods. Booksellers will receive full commission on all subscriptions as well as renewals. We are now interviewing booksellers. Ninety per cent of all those to whom the plan has been explained are actively taking subscriptions for the Guild.

You are misinformed regarding the extent to which publishers are cooperating with us. More than sixteen American publishers, among them some of the largest, have to date agreed to submit manuscripts for selection.

In your last article in the Weekly you compare the Literary Guild to the Book of the Month Club. You approve, by inference, of the Book of the Month Club plan and the manner of its operation. The Book of the Month Club is strictly a direct sale organization. The bookseller is not invited to cooperate in any way with it. The only benefit he derives is from the indirect stimulation that it gives sales in general. This we will concede is extremely important. But it is a benefit which the Guild will also give, in addition to allowing the bookseller a profit on subscriptions.

You also state that the Guild "campaign of sales will inevitably be based on an appeal to the public on the ground of lower prices for selected books." The Guild has been very careful in all of the literature which has been prepared to point out to the public that current book prices on single book sales are as low as the publishers can make them at the present time. It is only on a basis of large production and one sale instead of twelve that the Guild can offer this price to subscribers.

Furthermore, the Guild price is based solely on an annual subscription. It does not propose to sell single books at lower prices than publishers and booksellers.

SAMUEL W. CRAIG,
Literary Guild of America.

Field Work for Bookselling

The Publishers' Association Launches New Enterprise

AT the first January meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Book Publishers, a plan was approved for completing an arrangement with Charles Francis Potter to become secretary in charge of a lecture bureau with responsibility for field work in the general interest of books. This means another step forward in the gradually developing campaign for countrywide support of book interest which began seven years ago with the launching of Children's Book Week and the Year Round Book Campaign. With this experienced lecturer and publicist connected with the work, many new plans for the development of community book interest will be possible, and the Association has found in Mr. Potter an ideal person for this kind of work.

Charles Francis Potter

Mr. Potter's attitude toward this new field is well indicated in his letter of acceptance in which he said, "I am to give a year out of my life to the study and development of another cultural vehicle. As a lecturer and publicist, I shall do what can toward arousing a desire in America for more home libraries and better public libraries with the distinct purpose of trying to raise a bit the cultural level of a democracy whose very existence depends on its intelligence."

The work will be directly connected with the general promotion campaigns of the Publishers' Association, and the facilities and information of the office are at Mr. Potter's disposal for effective use. This extension of the work has been made possible by a voluntary and generous appropriation from the Employing Book Binders of America who, believing in the effectiveness of the Campaigns, desire to contribute, thru the Publishers Association to the promotion work.

Mr. Potter comes to the work from Antioch College, Ohio, where he has been acting as executive secretary under Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, the college president. Antioch was founded by Horace Mann, the great educator, and, under Dr. Morgan, has been in the forefront of progressive ideas on education. In this capacity Mr. Potter has traveled largely and lectured in many states. He was born in Marlboro, Mass., trained for the ministry, and, after several parishes, made a pulpit reputation in New York at the West Side Unitarian Church, which is in the neighborhood of Columbia University. One of the features of Mr. Potter's pulpit work in New York was his monthly book sermon which always brought to the church a largely increased audience and attracted the attention of a wide circle of book-minded people.

Mr. Potter is ready to begin his work and will be one of the speakers at the Annual luncheon of the National Association of Book Publishers.

UNIFORM CATALOGS

THE KORNER & WOOD CO.,
Cleveland,
Dec. 30, 1926.

Editor, Publishers' Weekly:

I heartily agree with Mr. Schenck's letter in the December 4 Publishers' Weekly urging Uniform Catalog Practice.

This would lessen our troubles considerably, and at the same time result in the sale of books which are now so hard to find when the patron's information is incomplete—as it is so often.

H. V. KORNER.

Personal

EDWARD CALDWELL has resigned from the presidency of the McGraw-Hill Book Co., Inc., 370 Seventh Avenue, New York, and will retire from active business. Binding Cloth Lower PRICE reductions of from one-half a cent to two cents on large orders of book cloths have been announced by the Interlaken Mills, the largest producers of this material.

The Weekly Record of New Publications

THIS list aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publications. Pamphlets will be included only if of special value. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request, in which case word "apply" is used. When not specified the binding is "cloth."

Imprint date or best available date, preferably copyright date in bracket, is always stated, except when imprint date and copyright date agree and are of the current year, in which case only "c" is used. No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n.d.].

Sizes are indicated as follows: F (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q (4to: under 30 cm.); O (8vo: 25 cm); D (12mo: 20 cm.); S (16mo: 17½ cm.); T (24mo: 15 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

The Field of Old and Rare Books and Weekly Book Exchange

CURRENT RARE BOOK NOTES

Frederick M. Hopkins

AFTER a vacation of about two weeks the auction rooms resumed their book sales this week. The prospects for an active period are good, altho announcements of forthcoming sales have not yet been made.

LITERATURE relating to the fine arts comprising books on architecture, ceramics, furniture, interior decoration, costume colored plate books, a number of fine bindings, Persian miniature paintings, and many of the publications of the Grolier Club, including the libraries of the late Charles I. Berg of this city, and the late Plato Mountjoy of St. Louis, will be sold at the American Art Galleries January 12.

THE latest "Book Auction Records," Volume 23 of the series, has just arrived from London. As it includes the sale season of 1925-26 it is certainly up-to-date and some months ahead of the publication dates of the two previous volumes. There are 16,903 records given in its 700 pages, including a useful general index to the four quarterly parts. This British "Book Auction Records" supplements and is almost as indispensable to the rare bookman as is the "American Book Prices Current," the two furnishing a complete guide to values as shown by the sales at auction in the two countries. The Publishers' Weekly is the publisher in the United States.

THE editor of the Bookman's Journal n the latest issue dated September-October, which has just been mailed to subscribers, offers apologies for delays in publication, pending important changes in format and make-up. This issue completes Volume XIV, and, when publication is resumed, it will show increased usefulness to its subscribers. He promises the magazine will be more closely devoted to the needs of collectors and researchers. In its new form, it will be a royal octavo instead of a quarto, and the resumption of publication is promised within a very few weeks.

THE Phoenix Book shop of this city has just issued Catalog No. 5, containing 465 items, mostly modern first editions, but including also many autograph letters and manuscripts. Among the latter are items of distinction, such as Scott's manuscript of his poem, "On Ettrick's Forest's Mountain Dun;" Arthur Symon's manuscript of "Christmas Eve," etc. Among the inscribed books is Moore's "Flowers of Passion." The first editions include de la Mare's "Songs of Childhood" and Housman's "A Shropshire Lad." The compiler has given the catalog permanent value by appending a bibliographical check list of the first editions of Sherwood Anderson. The issue, like the others in the same series, is well printed and is a model of what a good catalog should be.

JOHN HOWELL of San Francisco announces the publication of an important book of sketches written by Bret Harte and Mark Twain in 1864-67, during that brief period when they worked together on the staff of The Californian. This book will appeal to all lovers and collectors of Bret Harte and Mark Twain. It will contain about 250 pages, printed in Caslon type with decorative initials, appropriate to the sixties. The title-page is designed by Edwin Grabhorn. There will be a special edition of 250 copies on Strathmore Japan paper, edges uncut, and an edition of 2,000 copies on Buckeye text paper. Both will be bound in paper boards with cloth back and paper label, and a decorative paper jacket.

DR. OTTO H. F. VOLLBEHR of Berlin, whose exhibition of incunabula at the National Arts Club attracted the attention of collectors, has been interviewed at length in regard to America and points that interested him on his visit here. Of course he had a great deal to say in regard to American collectors and rare books. He has the highest praise for the real collectors of old books here, speaking in the highest terms of their enthusiasm, intelligence and persistency. "The late J. Pierpont Morgan was a bibliophile of the first water," he said. "Mr. Morgan took a real personal interest in books and probably had the best knowledge and discrimination of any American collector. Henry E. Huntington of Pasadena is the greatest collector of incunabula in America today. He has interested himself seriously in the subject and knows what he is buying. I am proud to say that a majority of the duplicates in my collection are now in the Huntington Library, the best library of incunabula in this country."

IMPORTANT historical and literary letters, the collection of the late Tristam Coffin of New York, will be sold at the Anderson Galleries in afternoon and evening sessions on January 17. The collection comprises 431 lots and includes valuable letters and documents relating to the American Revolution; autograph letters and documents of many of the Signers and Presidents; and letters of Edgar Allan Poe, Robert Burns, Lord Byron and other literary celebrities. There is much valuable material in the historical letters and documents, covering not only the troublous period of the American Revolution, but also the days preceding it, and the period when the Treaty of Peace was hanging in the balance. The Poe letter is a denial of the charge of plagiarism in connection with "The Conchologist's First Book."
